Via six masterpieces, the film reveals the beauty of the spirit of Versailles of the 17th and 18th centuries. A unique homage to the people that crafted it, the furniture reveals the personal tastes of its commissioners, and portrays something that has ceased to exist!

These unique items of furniture that once belonged to Louis 14th, Louis 15th, Marie-Antoinette and Louis 16th have fascinating stories to tell: the tortoise-shell chest-of-drawers with inlays of brass; an astronomical clock - a veritable miracle of science; the most emblematic example of French furniture art in the world - the King's Desk; and the exquisite items made for Marie-Antoinette - the queen's jewellery case and the wheat-sheaf furniture.

On the occasion of Elizabeth II 90's birthday (in 2016), this documentary offers an iconoclastic and distanced look of the Monarchy and the British society.

Few countries in the world have experienced an economic, social, cultural and artistic evolution as important as the United Kingdom in these last sixty years.

Based on unpublished archival footage and exclusive interviews (singers Paul McCartney and Keith Richards, writers Martin Amis, Ian McEwan and Salman Rushdie, artists David Hockney and Damien Hirst, actress Helen Mirren as well as leading politicians), off off main stream Ballad for a Queen is an historic ambulation in various symbolic places of England, an unprecedented portrait of the British Monarchy and its relations with the british society these last decades.

Brazil is said to be a sleeping giant waking up to become one of the world leaders. Our film will tell country's history through the eyes of two families over several generations.

In one of the families, the slaves of before became domestic workers, and the former domestics are now employees, with fixed hours and living in their own homes, where they raise their own children rather than those of their bosses. They have reached the middle class. The other family descends from coffee barons and army generals. It is still a wealthy family, but yesterday's fortune was lost. Its members have witnessed many historical events. These two families will embody the evolutions of Brazil since the twenties until today. Our goal is to intersect the families saga and the nation's history with a broad range of photo and film archives, both public and private. We will complete this with a more global contextualization of the general History of the country.

An autopsy of Egypt's contemporary history from 1952 to 2011 including its role on the international stage. Political, military and religious key characters, and personalities from the civil society, will provide an in-depth understanding of how revolution became inevitable.

By interweaving the 4 major following themes (The Army, The Moslem Brotherhood, International relations and the role of civil society in the country), a full multi-dimensional picture of Egypt's reality will emerge.

This will also allow us to grasp the specific style and character of each President and the delicate balance each forged to maintain their rule. Ultimately, it is an autopsy of the road from aspirations for an Independent, modern and secular Egypt to the triumph of both the despotism of the military establishment and Islamism.

The story will be told through anecdotes and untold stories by decision makers and the tales of ordinary people. We will delve into details of the chosen events through unique access to personal archive, declassified documents and unreleased photos and footage. Most important, we will use flamboyant Egyptian feature films depicting historic and political events as a form of archive material that helps to tell the story and allows us to capture the essence and atmosphere of each era.

While the war raged on, Henry Kissinger, national security advisor to President Nixon, and Lê Duc Tho, member of the Vietnamese Politburo, held secret meetings in France. Exclusive interviews and undisclosed recording reveal what actually happened between these two men who remained worlds apart.

27 January 1973. After five years of negotiations in Paris, the Americans and the Vietnamese made peace, in what had been a difficult process.

3 months earlier, in September 1972, a preliminary agreement had been secretly signed in France between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. In Saigon, the ally of the Americans, Nguyen Van Thieu, refused to sign it. Under orders from President Nixon, Kissinger was to resume his secret negotiations in October 1972 with his North Vietnamese counterpart, offering him amendments he could not accept. In mid-December, negotiations were suspended and Le Duc Tho returned to Hanoi. Two hours later, North Vietnam and its capital Hanoi suffered a spate of bombings. The air strikes, including bombings from around a hundred B-52s, lasted twelve days. Nixon had warned: "We must punish the enemy in ways that he will really hurt".

How to understand this final act of "cruelty", this massive and destructive air offensive, when peace was signed just three weeks later?

Supported by previously unaired archives, this film plunges us into the heart of the secret negotiations, finally shedding light on the obscure logic of US action, and reveals the extent of the tragedy: even when peace had become the main objective of all players, each player had to show their determination to continue the war.

A lack of political foresight, self-centeredness on the part of States, poor management by industrialists and European Commission dogmatism... is Europe on the verge of a blackout? This investigation endeavours to reveal the series of decisions that have led to this new form of insecurity, to this situation in which citizens lack the power to control access to energy.

Now that the crisis (economic, financial and ecological) has taken a firm hold over Europe and the rest of the world, the "return to growth" is systematically put forward by political leaders on both right and left, as the key process that will help us emerge from the tunnel.

For the public, invoking a return to growth always raises the same questions: what exactly is growth? How did this economic concept progressively make its mark, to the point of becoming an intangible dogma? How can we continue to promote unlimited growth today, knowing that our planet's resources are limited and are even facing exhaustion? Are there any theoretical and practical alternatives to growth? What can we do on a local level to change the paradigm?

The movie describes three areas in the world in the US, France and Japan where the landscapes are dominated by nuclear sites. It explains the origins of plutonium, and examines its evolution from a matter used for military purposes to one which is used for nuclear energy. It explores the scientific, industrial and geopolitical implications of its production.

The film begins with the story of the birth of plutonium production in the 40s in Hanford USA, then recounts the history of the nuclear reprocessing plant in La Hague, France, then tells of the Rokkasho nuclear site in Japan which is actually built on a seismic fault line. Citizens and local politicians share their thoughts and experiences on living near these nuclear sites. The film is based on archives made by scientists at that time and recreates the story of an industrial environment secretly born in arid and desolate locations. The sites, depicted through creative imagery, show us that humankind made an irreversible choice in the mid-twentieth century.

Kurdistan, which is split over Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Syria, could play a major role in a Middle East that has been torn apart. But who are the Kurds? What influence do they have? And who exactly is Abdullah Öcalan, leader of the Kurdistan Workers' Party? An enlightening investigation.

The siege of the Syrian city Kobane by the Islamic State troops put forward the forgotten people of the official history : the Kurdish people. In Turkey, where the majority of the Kurdish people is living, the various governments have perpetuated a policy of assimilation and denial with a rare violence. In 1983, the PKK - Kurdistan Workers Party - declared war on the Turkish state. This triggered a 30-year-old conflict, which caused the death of 40.000 people, the displacement of millions of people and the destruction of thousands of villages. Öcalan and the Kurdish issue describes twenty years of high hopes and disappointments in building a dialogue. It narrates a chronicle of one of the key conflicts in the Middle East, through the testimonies of those who lived it.

The film examines the mechanisms of Nazi extortion during the Second World War, and is interspersed with current issues surrounding restitutions.

It retraces the incredible stories of three major works having belonged to Jewish collectors, from their plundering by the Nazis though to their final restitution: Man with a Guitar by Georges Braque (Alphonse Kann collection), Herbstsonne by Egon Schiele (Karl Grunwald collection), and Sitting Woman by Henri Matisse (Paul Rosenberg collection).

During the war, the ERR run by Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's art advisor, coordinated thousands of cases of plundering that were carried out all over Europe, and had the spoils delivered to the heart of the 3rd Reich in Berlin. There, the major works were taken to the offices and homes of high-ranking officials and the rest of them were stored in various places. At the end of the war, despite the diligence of organisations focused on their restitution, tens of thousands of works were conjured away. Each time one of them reappeared, unimaginable ownership battles ensued.

Top models, actresses and businesswomen - two outstanding icons revealed. The 1990s produced a new kind of top model. They were beautiful girls but they were also much more than that.

With their strong characters, the "supermodels" turned the codes of fashion upside down, and extended the boundaries of pop culture. Among them, Eva Herzigova and Milla Jovovich immediately stood out. Both grew up far from the glamour of Hollywood, and made their mark without conforming to the stereotypes imposed by the Western dream machine. Leading photographer Peter Linbergh was one of the first to notice the two top models. This film sheds light on the lesser-known facets of two outstanding paths.

The inspirational fashions of the 1990s are currently being recuperated, revisited, revamped and revered by catwalk collections in Paris, Milan and New York. The film's 6 major themes - grunge, bad taste, bling, streetwear, sex and minimalism are made up of lively images blending archive footage and present-day interviews.

What if we watched Jean Paul Gaultier at work giving the definitive master class on what constitutes the essence of his work?

Jean Paul Gaultier's work is making clothes, not putting on fashion shows, producing perfume, talking to the media or presenting programs on MTV. But making clothes. He sketches them, of course, but more importantly, he creates them by draping them, constructing them around the body of the fitting model.

12 of Jean Paul Gaultier's most iconic creations are re-created directly onto a fitting model, in front of the camera, in understated, white surroundings. 10 women's outfits and 2 men's outfits.

In Haute Couture, the "toile" is the first stage, carried out using untreated, beige linen, which enables appraisal of the style. Like a first draft, the moment during which everything can still be changed, before the creation takes on its final shape. Jean Paul Gaultier at work can be viewed as a sequence shot, in which the garments materialize before our eyes, revealing how his thought process develops between ideas and material. Gaultier's oeuvre, recounted by himself, in the first person - like a lasting legacy of creativity.

Kate Moss, the top model who is only 1.69 meters tall, still remains, at the age of 40, the model that everyone wants to employ and that everybody knows. But who really is Kate Moss?

She is a veritable icon, a muse of the greatest designers, a shrewd businesswoman (her 2012 revenues are estimated at 9.2 million dollars) and a designer for Longchamp, Topshop and Fred. She has even been the subject of an exhibition at the Museum of Decorative Arts in Paris and of an auction at Christie's in London, featuring artwork images of her.

Kate Moss has had the longest and most successful modelling career, but also the most turbulent, and yet she still remains the top top-model.

Although she never gives interviews, everybody knows her - without really knowing her. How has "la brindille" (her French nickname, meaning "the twig") managed to remain in the firmament for so long?

But above all, who really is she?

Retracing her steps, this documentary takes viewers on a journey through Sixties London, with its parties, exuberant energy and incredible creativity.

Swinging London in the Sixties was a time of optimism, creativity and enthusiasm. At the centre of this pop rebellion was a new aristocracy, both colourful and insouciant; one that was ennobled by the magazine covers and the hit parade.

And one face more than any other was the incarnation of that cultural revolution: the face of Twiggy.

With her page-boy haircut, androgynous appearance and heavy eyeliner, Twiggy epitomised the Swinging Sixties. Aged just sixteen, the model from North London represented a challenge to the Establishment. She became the world's first supermodel and the icon of the Sixties.

Autism remains a mystery. However, the fact that there is no medical treatment is an absolute certainty. There is no solution for autism. People with autism will live with this disorder all their life and societies are all facing the same question: how to take care of them?

France lags behind on this subject. Comparing the experiences of other countries, Italy, Sweden, Germany, and Quebec, we will clarify the French situation and demonstrate that practices exist and allow to improve significantly the autistic's life. Every time it comes to real societal choices that reveal our various ways to approach difference. But there are in any case, no simple answers to this complex problem.

The history of homosexuality in pop culture is awash with secrets, unexpected developments, drama and major acts of courage, which form part of History in general.

It is no longer anything unusual to see homosexual characters in films or series. All the arts explore the theme, and numerous celebrities do not hide the fact that they are lesbian or gay. Yet not so long ago, it was a very complex matter to speak about homosexuality in popular culture, and those who did so had to find ingenious ways to approach the subject, and thus nudge mentalities forward to make homosexuals more accepted by the general public - and by themselves.

The film takes us to Hamburg, Berlin, Paris, Istanbul, London, Toulouse, Lyon and other cities, and recounts how towns and cities are being constructed and transformed, and what space is being left in them for citizens.

Public spaces, the spaces we live our collective lives in, are becoming privatised and marginalised, and run the risk of disappearing altogether. This investigation examines the excesses of the new tools of urbanism, and explores the citizen, political and artistic reactions that are endeavouring to oppose them, in France and in Europe.

Sarah Schwartz has been travelling the world, from big top to big top, for over twenty years. She has made the circus her world. A high wire at her feet leads her from one country to the next.

In this collection, she invites us behind the scenes of the circus dream, revealing its highly singular world. Taking part in a convoy with Sarah Schwarz means discovering a country in a different way: through the steamed up window of a caravan, a different shade of world goes past, a nomadic world, a world of freedom.

With Sarah, we set out to discover a universe that will help us understand the countries visited, bringing us wisdom and knowledge, but also magic and poetry. From the family circus to contemporary circus, from the travelling circus to the permanent circus, we discover countries that are different from each other, yet are all planets in the same galaxy. Roll up, roll up, for a magical, brightly coloured world tour!

"Tree Stories" is a five-episode journey, combining nature's finest tree specimens with the unique stories of the people that live alongside them.

The trees that are featured across Europe - from Greece to Sweden - stand as references to time, witnesses of collective life and sources of spirituality. Others represent, quite simply, aesthetic encounters. From the ends of their roots to the tips of their crowns, ten trees recount stories and converse among themselves, in this beautiful blending of nature and culture.

Nestled in the heart of the Himalayas, the small kingdom of Bhutan has decided to do away with "the dictatorship of Gross Domestic Product" and economic growth at all costs. A new wealth indicator has now become the country's gold standard: Gross National Happiness (GNH).

Launched by the country's fourth King, the "new paradigm" is based on four pillars: protection of the environment; conservation and promotion of Bhutanese culture; good governance; and responsible and sustainable economic development. Today, GNH permeates the entire country, and is bringing about deep change in agriculture (100% organic by 2020), the national education system (pupils learn to become "ambassadors of change"), natural resource management (strict regulations on mining and felling trees, and "zero carbon" development), healthcare (free for all), tourism (top-of-the-range), and energy (the promotion of renewable energies). Through interviews with senior officials as well as with players in the field, the film recounts the development of GNH. The vision of happiness and common good that underpins the country was the subject of a report that attracted a great deal of attention in the United Nations. This film in the Land of the Dragon will guarantee viewers a change of scenery. The country has gone from the Middle Ages to modernity in the space of less than 50 years, and is showing the way towards a sustainable, "decarbonised" and fairer society.

Are biopesticides - micro-organisms that fight pests naturally - the promise of a chemical-free agriculture? Farmers all over the world are converting to biopesticides, stimulated by scientific research that is opening up new perspectives. But is the technique risk-free for the environment?

Invertebrates, insects, mites, fungi, bacteria, viruses ... these living mini-organisms that scientists are studying in great detail worldwide, will here make light work of pests. Today they are our best hope of a pesticide-free agriculture that is so harmful to man and the environment.

So are biopesticides revolutionary? In Europe, Brazil and India, millions of farmers have already adopted bioprotectors. Today, the agro-chemical industry is investing heavily in the sector, but promising as it is, the technique is still far from being infallible, and is not entirely devoid of risk to the ecosystem.

INNOVATIONS ON BOARD

From Brittany to Indonesia, young engineer Corentin de Chatelperron and his crew sail their catamaran Nomad of the Seas on a quest for self-sufficiency! The aim of their "low-tech" world tour is to find simple solutions to universal problems.

Corentin and his organization Gold of Bengal have launched a challenge to experts, students, organizations, do-it-yourselfers and scientists all over the world to invent "low tech" systems - simple methods that help human beings reclaim their independence. These techniques require a great deal of ingenuity and talent but a low level of financial resources.

During each stopover - which constitutes each episode - we discover a particular aspect of a country through the topic covered, such as the desalination of seawater in Morocco, electronics recycling in Togo and the consumption of insects in Thailand. For each stopover, the crew meets low-tech inventors and innovators, who are seeking to solve universal problems of food, energy, water and material resources.

The series follows the first year of the expedition. As the crew clock up their successes, some failures and various experiments, the boat gradually undergoes a transformation, becoming increasingly autonomous, thanks to the low-tech systems it has adopted.

Populations of krill, the cornerstone of the Antarctic ecosystem, are dwindling dangerously. In the middle of the austral winter, a team of scientists has launched an unprecedented expedition to determine why.

The finger-sized, shrimp-like crustacean is the key link in the Southern Ocean food chain. All life in the Antarctic depends on the species, which is the planet's most abundant. But for the last thirty years, its figures have been declining dramatically, threatening life throughout Antarctica, for which it is a food source. What is causing this worrying depletion? To find out, a group of leading experts on the biology of the Antarctic and the Southern Ocean are taking part in an unprecedented scientific expedition on board the Polarstern, an icebreaker capable of cutting through the thick Antarctic ice. The aim of their research is to further an understanding of the links between the tiny crustacean and the vast expanse of ice, and to assess the density of krill populations living in these seas in winter. If the krill were to die out, many species would disappear along with it, including whales, seals, penguins. A drop in phytoplankton levels would endanger the entire Antarctic ecosystem.

Six women. Amy, Heike, Ida, Merethe, Otaciana and Pabitra. They live in Canada, Germany, Argentina, Denmark, Nepal and Brazil.

They have never met each other, but have many things in common. Although they are neither activists nor intellectuals, they all possess a sense of urgency in the face of the deterioration of our planet, which they see as a threat to the future of their children, and to humanity in general.

They form part of an increasingly large body of voices that are speaking up to demand an economic and ecological transition that will take on the challenges of the 21st century. On their own individual levels, they show that things can be done differently right now, by taking part in initiatives that lead to a fairer and more sustainable society, in the area of food production (urban agriculture), energy (transition towns) and money (local currencies). Their voices are paving the way for our future.

Should cancer really be understood and treated as a "disease of the genes" or could another avenue - which was once abandoned but has now been taken up again - enable us to understand and treat it?

Researchers and doctors in various countries think so, and want to revolutionize treatment. For them, cancer is a disorder of cellular metabolism, which could be treated with a few simple molecules. This film invites us to take stock of their research.

In Japan, in the region of Fukushima, citizens and scientists are working together to try to understand the invisible contamination that threatens their lives and haunts their minds.

What is a contaminated environment? What can we eat? Where can we live? Will our children be able to go back? What do I risk? To answer these pressing questions, collaborations of a new type are linking scientists, who have accepted to step out of their laboratories, and ordinary people, who now have to understand a complex science. Our film attempts to portray this unusual dialogue between simple folk and scientists. The disaster isn't a thing of the past for them, nothing is under control, it is all just starting.

Scientists have proved that the mental faculties of high-performance athletes' are superior to the average brain. Today, psycho-cognitive training is carried out in certain major clubs and Olympic teams, to push sportsmen and women even further. Studies now demonstrate its efficiency.

The performance of athletes has evolved considerably over the last twenty years, and the extraordinary talent of certain super-trained, veritable winning-machines is intriguing neuroscientists. As a result of technological progress, scientists now have the tools to be able to understand exactly what lies behind the talent of these unstoppable champions.

Through careful observation of outstanding athletes' brains, scientists have identified mechanisms of learning and gesture memorisation, in the core of these athletes' neurons.

They have been able to observe to what extent intensive physical training modifies the cerebral cortex, which gives high-performance sportspeople greater rapidity and more precision than anyone else in their particular sport. But the beneficial effects of their daily sports practice do not stop there; it also increases their cognitive capacities. More attentive and able to control their concentration effectively, these athletes use superior intelligence to read and anticipate their opponents' moves.

On sports fields today, high-performance athletes are close to reaching the physical limits of the human body. Their only real margin for improvement is now mental. A growing number of European and North American scientists are offering solutions to top sports clubs and Olympic teams, to train these athletes' mental capacities that have been neglected for so long. They are offering coaches a new perspective on performance, setting up customised training with them, in which great importance is placed on observation, concentration and controlling stress and the emotions.

Will we soon be conceiving and growing babies outside women's bodies?

The very first baby conceived following a womb transplant was born in Sweden in 2014. The film relates this scientific undertaking, which has ignited hope among the 1 in 5,000 women born without a uterus, as well as among women who have lost their wombs to cancer or an accident. In France, two medical teams are currently preparing to embark upon a protocol designed for a small group of young women who do not have wombs. This medical exploit marks a new chapter in the fight against sterility. And as medical advances meet the concerns of society, transsexuals and homosexuals view it as the opportunity to experience pregnancy themselves. The prospect of babies developing entirely outside the womb in an artificial uterus is getting closer.

Pierre Bonnard is one of the great masters of 20th century painting. A painter of the intimate, driven by an obsession with landscapes and domestic scenes, his timeless oeuvre earned him great criticism in his time.

How did Bonnard, a private, anxious man, who lived an ordinary day-to-day existence, become the incontestable painter of intimacy, capable of transforming reality into a unique and incandescent world?

Through his paintings, his personal notebooks, his correspondence with Matisse and Vuillard, the photographs he was so fond of, and the places he lived, which he painted and exalted time and time again, the film plunges viewers into the world of this master of colour.

In 19th century Paris, for both political and economic reasons, Parisian prostitution became a social phenomenon on an unprecedented scale. From the seedy part of town to the salons of the wealthy bourgeoisie, Paris became the capital of sex.

During this industrial revolution era, doctors and moralists, cops and robbers, bosses and workers all used prostitution - and it inevitably attracted artists.

From the mid 19th century, it was as though prostitution had become a central, key theme of artistic creation. The film recounts the rise and metamorphosis of prostitution in the 19th century, through the eyes of artists, and the pictorial revolution that accompanied it. By exploring the representation of prostitution in 19th century arts, the film dwells on this very specific moment in the history of the "world's oldest profession".

This film provides the opportunity to follow an outstanding project - the restoration of one of the Louvre Museum's greatest icons.

Victory of Samothrace. The masterpiece of Greek sculpture attracts millions of visitors every year, yet is little known to the general public. Archaeologists and art historians have been carrying out research on it for many years in order to clear up some of its remaining mysteries.

Based on the major stages of its restoration, this film recounts the history of a two-thousand-year-old sculpture that today has lost its head and arms, and that travelled to Paris from a small Greek island nearly 150 years ago, in "kit form". The monument - one of the most spectacular and accomplished expressions of Greek sculpture of the Hellenistic period - has dominated the Louvre Museum's Daru staircase since 1883.

Plunge into Parisian life at the turn of the 20th Century with Picasso, Dali, Apollinaire, Man Ray, Kiki and more...

Adapted from Dan Franck's literary trilogy Bohemian Paris, Libertad!, Midnight - The documentary series made up of six episodes plunges us into Parisian life in the beginning of the twentieth century, a hotbed of artistic creation with the blossoming of Fauvism, Cubism, Dadaism, and surrealism.

Through illustrations, animation and original archives, the film will trace the highs and lows, scandals and celebrations, tragedies and the triumphs that shaped the phenomenal period of Modern Art from the basement of the "Bateau-lavoir" in 1900 to the last shudders of World War II.

The main characters are called Picasso, Max Jacob, Stein, Apollinaire, Hemingway, Matisse, Cocteau, Kiki... artists, art dealers, muses who came to France from all over Europe and left an indelible mark on the 20th century. These glorious subversives were adventurers before becoming heroes.

DESIGN

Placing the art of design in its sociological and technological context, the DESIGN collection tells the story of the 20th century through the industrial objects that have made their mark on it. The objects reflect their time, while at the same time anticipating the future.

Just like a piece of art, an industrial object is a mirror of its era, though in a more direct and explicit manner than a painting or a sculpture. The industrial object obeys two fundamental criteria: It needs to be functional, perform its task in daily life - and after all must be sold. Therefore, it has to be technically innovative and esthetically pleasant.

The series, rather than explaining last century's objects, uses them to zoom on different periods. Which invites the audience not so much on a tour through museums, but on a journey in time. Archive images illustrate the political, social and cultural situation of a defined chapter from our past, via film extracts, cultural presentations, popular music etc. The history of the object itself, its conception, creators, fabrication and a contemporary frame story join in to build a bridge between the past and the present.

Everything has been said, shown and recounted regarding the legend of Charlie Chaplin. Everything... or nearly everything!

How did a street child, born in one of the most underprivileged districts of London, become the most famous man in the world in the space of a few years?

How did cinema, which was only just reaching adulthood, free itself from Music Hall and Vaudeville to suddenly burst into modernity in such a short time, evolving from the status of fairground attraction to an industry generating fortunes and creating almost instant celebrities?

Our film will relive the history of the success of Chaplin, going beyond the era and fashions, and examine the birth of an icon, on its centenary, whose outline alone sums up what is most brilliant, moving and inventive in cinema.

We will explore the mystery of this almost instant success, and the universality of a silhouette that has lasted for over a century. We will relive the resurrection of these images in their former glory.

A production with Chaplin Association.

This fascinating portrait is for anyone who has ever been captivated by Alain Delon's dashing good looks, and for anyone who wants to know more about the man behind the mask. By the end of the film they will view this famous French icon in a totally different light.

A portrait of Alain Delon that sets out to remove the masks of this defence-ridden, international icon - for the very first time. The portrait focuses entirely on its main subject - it is "pure Delon", with no other interviewees. Via numerous film excerpts, it follows the actor's path right from the start. Delon speaks in a series of surprising interviews, spanning nearly 50 years. At the end of this breathtaking journey, a new vision emerges: Alain Delon, the man of 87 movies and the most handsome face in French cinema, remains a mystery.

Cary Grant is one of the most enduring icons of the Hollywood golden era. Described by the film historian and biographer David Thomson as "The greatest screen actor of all time", Grant is without doubt the actor whose style as the suave and elegant man-in-the-suit has remained iconic and modern: his image is still used in advertising and inspired Don Draper in Mad Men. The word "Borsalino" today designates a felt hat. The Borsalino family brand has become a household name, like that of Tupperware, Kleenex or Walkman.

The quality felt hat, born in a small family factory in Alessandria in the 1850s, rose in status from manufactured object to veritable international myth when the craftsmanship of a small provincial town met the Hollywood dream. This film recounts the history of the manufacture of this myth, which has close ties to the history of cinema in the early 20th century.

Marcello Mastroianni, one of the greatest cinema icons, is much more than a playboy. Throughout his 40 year-long career, with his unique style, he has personified every single aspect of the Italian male : charisma, melancholic tenderness, self-mockery, cleverness and a natural gift for appealing to all.

The film lets the actor speak for himself, in a sort of << imaginary autobiography >>. With the many interviews he gave throughout his career, the film builds its own interview, in its ideal form. Mastroianni, and his relatives and partners tell us about his life. Through the portrait of the most famous Italian actor, we try to solve the mystery of this indefinable and enchanting << Italian-style >>.

A portrayal of a mysterious artist who is as flamboyant as he is evasive, who combines a love of the limelight with a yearning for the shadows, and who embodies the fascination Hollywood holds.

From his first major movie role ("Splendour in the Grass", 1961) to his latest film to date ("Bulworth", 1998), Warren Beatty has actively courted and fled from the limelight with equal zeal. This actor-producer-screenwriter, and finally Oscar-winning director, who is the irresistible embodiment of the American male - and a man of many women - epitomises Hollywood's genius, candour and excesses. At the age of 30, thanks to "Bonnie and Clyde", he became a prince in the movie kingdom he so passionately wanted to conquer. He then used the same tenacity to set about ridding himself of the dictates of Hollywood, taking refuge in silence and turning down projects and roles. His flamboyant career is an illustration of this ambivalence: in the year 2000, this man of left-wing ideals enthusiastically launched a brief presidential campaign only to abandon it suddenly, providing no explanation of why, other than his desire to be elsewhere. A colourful portrait composed of archive images and animation sequences, spanning 40 years of cinema, between modernity and nostalgia.

After leaving Sennett's Keystone Studios, where he had spent his year of apprenticeship in cinema, Charles Chaplin became a worldwide star at 10 times his former salary by joining The Essanay Film Manufacturing Company in January 1915. For the first time, his name was on the credits (the series was called "Essanay-Chaplin brand"), and Essanay was the first to sell merchandising rights for a movie character.

In one year, Chaplin was to star in and direct 16 hilarious films, including his iconic The Tramp - each release breaking a new record in sales. Like the two previous series (Keystone and Mutual), these will be newly restored. They will sparkle! The restoration of the Essanay comedies will conclude the restoration of the Chaplin films, now 100 years old, and will amaze future generations in their second century.

In 1916, after a 2-year long career, Chaplin is already the most paid actor in the world. He signs for 12 new comedies with Mutual Film Corp. He has his own studio, and total control of the production of his films : unprecedented.

These 12 comedies shot between 1916 and 1917 are a fireworks of humor, invention and fun, maybe what Chaplin has done best in all his career. Success after success, the character of The tramp becomes more complex, and films like The Vagabond, One A.m. Or the Immigrant are jewels of skill and sophistication.

These ultimate restorations are the result of 3 long years of research in the world, and technological achievements. One century after their first release, these films do not have a wrinkle, and the pleasure of watching them is intact. Chaplin said "Shooting the Mutual comedies was the best moment of my life"

This animated mini-series is based on Marion Montaigne's popular and irreverent science blog. Professor Moustache and his assistant Nathanaël demystify science on screen and day-to-day.

"You'll Die Smarter" is for those who skipped biology or physics lessons but who vaguely remember what gravity and white blood cells are, and who think that lasers are cool, but would like to know a bit more. And if possible, not have to make too much of an effort, oh, and also have fun. Because learning the fun way is the best way to remember it all.

CAROLE MATTHIEU

Bad Mother. Bad Mistress. Workplace physician.

Isabelle Adjani is Carole Matthieu - a workplace physician employed in a call centre who has become emotionally involved in the suffering of her humiliated coworkers, exposed to both physical and emotional violence. Powerless to stop the endless flow of employees that come to see her on a daily basis, she decides to take action one evening. When one employee, whom she has previously saved from a suicide attempt, comes to see her, she decides to end it all.... for him. In a frantic race against time, police search for a culprit, unions dither on the stance they should take, and the management tries to keep up a front, to hold on to their market share. Despite these obstacles, and the doubt and guilt consuming her, the slayer-cum-saviour workplace angel is determined to recount "the other story", using notes, letters and medical records. The story of men and women, crushed under the mechanics of performance and profit. With: Isabelle ADJANI, Corinne MASIERO, Ola RAPACE. PROVISIONAL DELIVERY: MAY 2016

This drama is Valeria Bruni Tedeschi's adaptation of Anton Chekhov's favourite play.

In a small garrison town, lost in the middle of the Russian countryside, three young women, who arrived there with their late father, a former brigade commander, dream of returning to Moscow where they spent their childhood. Entertained by military visits, the sisters find a semblance of a life. Macha, who married her dull husband at too early an age, falls in love with a commander. Olga finds renewed enthusiasm for life and Irina becomes engaged to a lieutenant.

But it is soon time for the troops to leave, the youngest sister's fiancé dies in a duel, and solitude once again takes over the lives of these three women, who become disillusioned recluses. The chronicle of several years of a life on the fringes of history and modernity, this four-act drama is an ironic portrayal of a youth without perspective or illusion, as though frozen in a deadly era. The strange mirror of a drifting country, Three Sisters captures the image of a society on the brink of a destiny that cannot be, and that is aware of its imminent end.

With: Eric RUF, Bruno RAFFAELLI, Florence VIALA, Coraly ZAHONERO, Laurent STOCKER, Michel VUILLERMOZ, Elsa LEPOIVRE, Gilles DAVID, Stéphane VARUPENNE, Georgia SCALLIET, Danièle LEBRUN and Michel ROBIN, Bernard NISSILE from the Comédie-Française.
